INSTRUCTIONS

1. Fold the cotton cord in two halves. Tie an overhand knot 2cm (0.8") from the fold to make a loop. The loop should fit tightly over a button.

2. Pass one of the two cord ends through one hole of the first button and pass it back through the second hole. Repeat this with the other cord end from the other side of the same button. The button is now fixed between two cords. Tie an overhand knot. The distance between two knots should be about 3.5cm (1.5").

3. Repeat step 2 three more times.
